PLAN EMPLOYMENT FOR RETURNED SOLDIERS

When the boys from the Spindle City begin to return from the cantonments and from the "other side" they will not have to remain unemployed for any length of time.

Plans have been under way in Lowell for the past weeks since the signing of the armistice with this contingency in view, and those concerned in meeting this phase of the local reconstruction problem are very optimistic regarding the labor situation here.

In speaking to a representative of The Sun today on the question of providing employment for our dough boys as they come back to us, Cornelius P. Cronin of the local United States employment service said: "We shall endeavor to place every soldier and sailor who built from this city in what is known as the 'other side' of the war. They will be given the preference for all positions that they are qualified to fill. This does not mean that there is any need of uneasiness among the workers in the local industries today, as we can find positions for all who are willing to work, and know of no reason why this will not continue to be the case in the coming months."

The Lowell community labor board, which is under the direction of Chairman Frederick N. Wier, has for the past three weeks been engaged in an intensive survey of the local industries with this end in view, that during the coming days of reconstruction and reorganization the streets shall not be full of unemployed, either civilians or ex-soldiers and sailors.

By means of this survey the board is kept informed of all changes in the

PRIVATE WILLIAM GEARY Gassed in France

Private William C. Geary of Co. A, 101st Engineers, has been gassed in France, but was able to report for duty on Sept. 21, according to information received from the war department by his parents, John and Nellie Geary of 535 Broadway.

A telegram from Adjutant General Harris, stating that Private Geary had been wounded, degree undetermined, but able to return to his company Sept. 21, was received here this morning. Yesterday a card from the war department stating that the Lowell soldier had been gassed but was able to re-join his unit Sept. 21, was received by mail. It is assumed that both card and telegram refer to the same occurrence.

Private Geary is a former member of Co. C of the old Sixth regiment. He responded to the call with that unit when war broke out but was later transferred to the 101st Engineers. He went overseas over a year ago.

He is the second member of his family to have seen overseas duty as a brother, Corp. John Geary, is also in France with the engineers. He has been overseas five months.

LOWELL MEN ON CASUALTY LIST

This evening's casualty list contains the names of Privates John M. King and Joseph April of this city. Private King is reported as having died of wounds and Private April as missing in action.

News of both casualties has been received here before. Private King was the son of Mrs. Bridget King of 71 Powers street. Mrs. King received a telegram from the war department Friday, Nov. 22, in which it was stated that her son had died Oct. 27, later, however, letters from Private King were received dated Oct. 27, and Nov. 2. An investigation of the discrepancy in the dates is now being made.

Private April is the son of Isadore and Philomene April of 251 Cheever street. He entered the national service June 26 of this year and went overseas with one of the national army units shortly afterward.

Gen. Pershing Designates Units for Early Convoy to U. S.—Corrected U. S. Casualty List Contains 262,723, Exclusive of Prisoners—46,378 Men Already Mustered Out—American Officers Decorated

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—General Pershing has designated for early convoy to the United States a total of 3451 officers and 79,661 men, General March announced today. The units comprising these men will be made public later.

In the list appear as entire divisions, 29th, 76th and the 87th. The other troops comprise artillery units and army corps troops.

Official Losses 262,723

General March gave out amended casualty reports from General Pershing giving the official total to Nov. 26 as 262,723, exclusive of prisoners. The figures on prisoners were unintelligible in the cablegram. General March said the total under this head probably would be practically the same as announced last Saturday.

General Pershing reported the following official casualties to Nov. 26:

Killed in action: 28,366.
Died of wounds: 12,101.
Died of disease: 15,034.

PEACE SCENE ON BATTLEFIELD

Lowell Soldier Tells of His Experience When War Cannons Ceased Booming

Sergt. Jack Walsh's Letter First of Its Kind to Be Received Here

The first written expression by a Lowell soldier of what occurred on the battlefield on the now famous Monday, November 11, 1918, the day the armistice was signed, has been received in this city by Mr. and Mrs. John Walsh of 771 Westford street from their son, Sergt. Jack Walsh of the 102d Headquarters Train.

"It stopped at once—all that racket—and for a minute or two one couldn't believe that it was the end." Thus, he sums up the feelings of himself and his comrades who a minute before had been fighting with all their strength and might to hurl back the Germans and then, as if by magic, everything ceased and a great silence spread over

THE SUGAR SCHEDULE

Warren E. Riordan of the local food control department wishes to state, in order to clear up what seems to be some misunderstanding among the people of the city in regard to the new sugar regulations that the regulations for the month of December which were published in Wednesday's issue of The Sun will be adhered to, and sugar on a four-pound basis will be procurable at the local grocers for the coming month beginning Monday. The only change made in the regulations is that the sugar will be issued on what is termed a "legal allotment" coupon, instead of on the old three pound coupons, as stated Wednesday. One week's supply is all that may be purchased at one time, and Mr. Riordan again emphasizes the fact that the coupons must be obtained from the grocer with which the household is registered for their November allotment.

ADMIT GERMANY TO THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS

BOSTON, Nov. 30.—Theodore Marburg of Baltimore, former minister to Belgium, in an address here last night, said he favored "admission of Germany into the proposed league of nations to prevent her from forming a group of nations hostile to the league."

He said the league should include all great and secondary powers of Europe, including the Scandinavian countries, also Japan and the A. B. C. nations of South America.

He declared it must possess an overwhelming military power for police purposes, which would never be used as "no nation would dare to defy its mandate."

GERMANY YIELDS TO BRITISH THREAT TO RESUME WAR

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 30.—In response to a threat by the British armistice commissioners that hostilities would be resumed unless the conditions under which prisoners were arriving in the allied lines should be remedied, a Berlin telegram declares that everything is being done by Germany to assure the orderly return of prisoners.

The German response adds that the regular transport of returning prisoners is now insured and that such transport has already been effected to a considerable extent.

FOR REPUBLIC IN GERMANY

Aims of New German Democratic Party Outlined by Berlin Editor

Will Oppose Bolshevism With All Means at Its Command

BERLIN, Thursday, Nov. 28.—(By the Associated Press)—The aims of the new German democratic party the appeal of which for comprehension and support has been sent to President Wilson, were outlined today by Theodor Wolff, editor in chief of the Berlin Tageblatt. It was on his initiative that the party was formed. He said:

"Our party has been formed to support the republic, to further democratic reforms on a socialistic-economic basis and to furnish a rallying point for the middle classes and keep them from falling into the power of the reactionaries. The party naturally will oppose Bolshevism with all means at its command. In other words, we aim to win and hold the middle classes for democracy."

According to Wolff, in keeping with the party's aims all former members of the progressives or other parties who have been active in militaristic and nationalist agitation, or who, like Dr. Gustav Stresemann, national liberal member of the reichstag have actually advocated the submarine campaign have been flatly informed that while they cannot be excluded from the party, if they desire to join, they will, nevertheless, be rigorously excluded from any participation in its leadership.

STOP BREWING BEER TONIGHT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—Brewing of beer and other malt beverages will stop at midnight tonight throughout the United States. The special presidential committee which recommended the presidential proclamation prohibiting brewing as a war conservation measure, decided today to make no recommendation to President Wilson on suggestions that the proclamation should be rescinded in view of the armistice.

The gift was presented by Miss Lathin, and the presentation address was made by Mrs. Florence Fulton, Mrs. Taylor, although taken by surprise, responded in a fitting manner, and the happy gathering dispersed to take up again the tasks of the day.

At this morning's session of the police court Judge Thomas J. Enright again called the attention of the police to existing conditions on the North common and vicinity and stated that in his opinion a special police officer should be assigned to the common evenings. This unfavorable comment on that part of the city was brought about after Michael H. Hennessy, aged about 65 years, who was arraigned on a charge of drunkenness, informed the court that last evening he was relieved of $200 in cash by three young men on the common. He stated that while he was going across the common he was assaulted by three young men, who grabbed him by the throat, threw him to the ground and then went through Continued to Page 3—First Section

LOWELL COTTON MILL OUTLOOK

Local Mill Agents Say They Do Not Know Just Where They Are At

No Curtailment in Production—Some Mills Hire In Additional Help

Government Orders Nearing an End—Price of Cotton Will Be Big Factor

What about the textile industry in Lowell and what is going to happen in connection with it during the next six months?

Investigation by The Sun shows that it is too soon to obtain reliable and definite data on what Lowell cotton mill corporations can do in turning from war to peace conditions.

With commendable frankness, the mill agents of Lowell say they do not know at the present time, "where they are at," or what they are going to do in the future.

There is no evidence at present that any mill in Lowell has curtailed its production, dismissed any of its help or plans on doing this in the immediate future.

As a matter of fact, in some instances the mills have not hesitated to hire in additional help. It is violating no confidence to say that a large number of boys are at present

LOCAL COMPANY GROWS

Father John's Medicine People Have Leased Buildings in Market Street

Carlson & Hovey Company, proprietors of Father John's Medicine, have leased the building owned by Trull & Sheburn at 83 Market street, together with the adjoining building owned by the Brabrook heirs. This property has been vacant for some years.

Certain improvements necessary will be made before it can be occupied. It will be utilized principally for storage and some manufacturing.

Their present quarters on Central street are not to be disturbed and will be occupied as heretofore, where the office will be and where manufacturing will continue.

This property was leased some weeks ago during the period when permits for building and construction could not be obtained on account of war restrictions.

It is the purpose of the company at a later period to erect a building on land which they now own on the main line of the railroad about half a mile from the center of the city, where the manufacturing department and office will be under one roof.

The necessity for storage space arose on account of the growing business, and the fact that the company is about to embark on the manufacture of chemical specialties. This latter work is under the direction of Dr. Edward Smith, research chemist, formerly of the Lowell Textile school, who has been associated with the company for about two years.

On account of railroad congestion, it has been found necessary also to carry a larger quantity of supplies than during normal times.

SAYS GERMANY THREATENED TO DECLARE WAR ON AUSTRIA

COPENHAGEN, Friday, Nov. 29.—People of prominence in Vienna, who are in touch with the foreign department there, assert that in 1917, when Count Czernin, then Austro-Hungarian foreign minister sought, by Emperor Charles' order, to induce Emperor William to conclude peace, he was referred to supreme headquarters.

When Count Czernin pointed out that Austria was exhausted and might be compelled to make a separate peace, General Ludendorff, striking the table, exclaimed:
"The same day that Austria concludes a separate peace, it will receive a declaration of war from Germany. That will be our only answer to such a breach."

MEMORIAL EXERCISES

Elks Memorial at Opera House Tomorrow—Hon. David I. Walsh Speaker

Senator-elect David I. Walsh will be the speaker at the annual memorial exercises to be held by the Lowell lodge of Elks tomorrow evening in the Lowell Opera House beginning at 8 o'clock. The exercises will be open to the public and as this ceremony has always attracted large gatherings in past years, it is expected that the Opera House will be filled to capacity tomorrow evening. Doors will be opened at 7:30.

Brother James E. Donnelly has arranged the musical numbers of the program and the Elks orchestra. Brother John H. Buckley, leader, will do the honors. Brother Thomas M. Maguire will be the organist.

Members of the lodge will meet at the rooms in Middle street at 6:30 and will later march in a body to the Opera House. Out of town Elks who may be in the city tomorrow are urgently requested to attend.

Ready for Peace Session

 of the United States at the peace conference would be: The president himself, the secretary of state, the Hon. Henry White, recently ambassador to France, Mr. Edward M. House, and Gen. Tasker H. Bliss.

"It was explained that it had not been possible to announce these appointments before because the number of representatives each of the chief belligerents was to be determined a day or two ago under discussion."

It is generally believed that the president will attend the conference as the president of the United States and that Secretary Lansing, Mr. White and Col. House and probably General Bliss will be the accredited delegates.

The inclusion of President Wilson among the representatives was not taken in official quarters today to mean that he would remain at home the full conference. It was suggested that he and also the premiers of Great Britain, France and Italy would remain until after the broad outlines of the peace treaty were decided upon and then would leave to the accredited delegates the working out of the details.

The attitude of the republican leaders toward the appointment of former Ambassador White as the representative of the party was also widely discussed today.

Bliss' Name a Surprise
 There was only one surprise in the statement, the appearance of the name of Gen. Bliss as one of the representatives.

It had been taken for granted that the general military representative of the United States on the supreme war council would take part in the discussions at Versailles, but the general idea had been he would be attached to the delegation in a military capacity, just as Admiral Benson probably will be present as spokesman for the navy in the great naval problems to be solved.

It was suggested last night that the name of Gen. Bliss probably was added at the last moment upon receipt of information that the allied powers would include a military man among their representation.

There is discussion, but no official explanation, of why two of the names mentioned in the early speculation as to the probable personnel of the peace delegation do not appear on the list.

Willis Root, ex-secretary of state, and Louis D. Brandeis, associate justice of the supreme court, were considered in well-informed quarters as almost certain to be chosen.

Recently it has been said that Mr. Root did not care to undertake the mission and that Justice Brandeis would not be able to leave the country because of his work in the navy.

The president expects to sail the day after he addresses the new session of congress and the address probably will be delivered either Monday or Tuesday.

On his ship, the transport George Washington, will go the peace delegation and its army of experts and clerical staff.

To avoid confusion and to save trouble, the War Trade board last night issued a blanket export license to cover the baggage of all passengers sailing on the George Washington, as well as that of the newspapermen who start for Europe Sunday at noon from New York on the steamship Orizaba.

GIRLS MUST REMOVE ROUGE AND POWDER

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 30.—Complexion censors have been assigned to the chief railway terminals in Newark. Girls were inclined to rebel when ordered to remove rouge and powder from their faces, but obeyed when the policemen displayed their badges. The discrimination against conspicuous color was inspired, according to Inspector Thomas J. Corbally by the fact that the well-being of Newark has been menaced recently by invasions from New York and other places by girls with striking complexions, also because he added, some Newark girls whose parents forbade cosmetic put on their make-ups in the rest rooms at the stations, made their public appearance in color and then removed the camouflage at the same place before returning home.

"I got my authority from the common law," said Inspector Corbally, "and I feel also that I am acting in the place of the parents of these girls, who would want me to do what I am doing, if they knew what was going on."

MRS. LEISHMAN, WIFE OF FORMER U. S. AMBASSADOR TO GERMANY, DEAD
 NICE, France, Thursday, Nov. 28.—Mrs. Julia Leishman, wife of John G. A. Leishman of Pittsburgh, former American ambassador to Germany, died today at Monte Carlo. The funeral will be held in Paris.

MRS. LEISHMAN BEFORE HER MARRIAGE
 In 1880, was Miss Julia Crawford. Her husband had been minister to Switzerland and Turkey, and ambassador to Turkey, Italy and Germany, retiring from the diplomatic service in 1913. She was married in Geneva in October, 1913, to the Duke of Croix, a member of the German diplomatic service.

ONLY ONE TURKEY SERVED ON THURSDAY IN ENTIRE U. S.
 ARMY OF OCCUPATION
 WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY OF OCCUPATION, Thursday, Nov. 28.—(By the Associated Press)—Only one turkey was served on Thanksgiving day in the entire American army of occupation. This was at the mess of 15 far-sighted officers of the bureau of operations at the headquarters of the Third division, at Remich. The turkey was purchased on Nov. 11 and was fattened for the feast to-day. Other Thanksgiving dinners in the army varied according to the resources of the mess officers and the ingenuity of the cooks. Owing to transportation difficulties, the quartermaster was unable to furnish the luxuries and trimmings which always mark the last Thursday in November.

While the Americans had plenty of wholesome and substantial food from the enemy lines came further reports of hunger among the released allied prisoners, food riots among the defeated troops and civilian privations.

Peace Scene

 the desolate stretches of battlefield shell-worn and shrapnel-scarred by long months of fighting.

The Lowell soldier's letter is unique in that it has been written and verbal, that Lowell people will receive from their sons and brothers of that glorious day when war was declared a thing of the past. The missive is written in the simplest of language but its very simplicity seems to accentuate the dramatic element of the great occurrence which it admirably portrays. In full, it is as follows:

The Day, Nov. 11, 1918.
 My Dearest Mother—In this wonderful hour and day I want to send you a little note. I am writing shortly after 11 o'clock in the morning. And light has shined—top of the war is over. How I, all of us, in fact, thank the good God above for that.

My dear mother, we did not definitely know that Germany had surrendered to the terms until 15 minutes before 11. At that time, you would ever suspect that peace was only 15 minutes away. For, guess mother, we sure did give those boches hell during the last four hours of the war. Every gun on our front was firing on the recoil and not a German replied. It was dramatic. One moment of eleven and the racket was as loud as ever. And then—everybody turned up his wrist watch, saw the hour and the greatest peace we have ever known was on us. It happened at once—14 that racket and for a minute or two we couldn't believe it was the end.

Finally, the woods rang with shouts, whistles, yells and every other thing, including dances. Nearly everybody cut loose with their automobiles and we had a small war of our own for a few minutes. And I can assure you that the most wonderful silence settled over these woods. As I write there isn't a sound. It's so strange—it will take us days to get used to it. It used to get quiet like that for an hour before the big drives began. But that's over. Once in a while some fellow "holters." "I want to home" and already we are arguing that. Your prayers are answered and it will not be long before George and I are back with you, mother and dear. Love to everybody. I am in a hurry.

Your son, JACK.

PRIESTS URGE WILSON TO AID IRELAND

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—Mgr. Joseph F. Mooney, administrator of the archdiocese of New York, announced yesterday that 1021 Catholic priests of the archdiocese have joined in a petition urging President Wilson to work at the coming peace congress for extension of the principle of self-determination to Ireland as well as to other small nations.

"The petition says, in part: 'We urge that "self-determination for Ireland," in accordance with your memorable enunciation of the American doctrine of government, have your generous support at the peace conference; and we believe that the solution, through you, of the age-long Irish trouble will add to the luster of our country's greatness.'

 his pockets, making their escape with $200 in bills. Mr. Hennessey called the attention of the court to a large wound in his head, which he claimed was the result of the assault. He said he could not identify his assailants. The defendant pleaded guilty to a charge of drunkenness, but owing to the circumstances surrounding the case, the complaint was placed on file.

Found Not Guilty
 Mrs. Mary A. Tighe, who was brought in on a complaint charging her with assault and battery on Inspector John A. Walsh, and whose case was tried last Saturday, was this morning dismissed, after the court ordered a finding of not guilty. It seems that the alleged assault occurred at the home of the defendant, when she was trying to protect her son, whom Inspector Walsh wanted to take to the station on a charge of larceny, despite the fact that no warrant had been issued for the arrest of the boy. The court contended that the officer should have secured a warrant for the arrest of the boy before entering the house.

Crimes Continued
 Arthur E. Orne, who was arrested in Boston yesterday on a warrant charging him with the larceny of $100 from Frank A. Donnelly, had his case continued for a week, during which time, it is expected a civil settlement will be effected.

William Evans denied his guilt to a charge of receiving stolen property and his case was put over until Monday morning.

Hunting Without License
 Fred Brooks was brought in by a Draught officer on a charge of hunting in Draught without a license and after pleading guilty he was ordered to pay a fine of $15.

Other Cases
 Lyman Lawrent, who conducts a poolroom in Merrimack street denied his guilt to a complaint charging him with unlawfully admitting a minor in his poolroom and inasmuch as this was his second offence, he was ordered to pay a fine of $20.

Magistrate Lebo for non-support of his wife was ordered committed to the house of correction for a term of two months and he entered an appeal. George Matsou for being a stubborn child was given a suspended sentence to the Massachusetts reformatory.

BOSTON, Nov. 30.—Major General Clarence R. LEAGUE OF FREE NATIONS SEEKS MEMBERS IN EVERY COMMUNITY

BOSTON, Nov. 30.—An effort to obtain members in every community in the state was commenced today by the charter members of the League of Free Nations association of Massachusetts organized here last night with J. Randolph Coolidge, Jr., as temporary chairman.

The association sent a telegram to President Wilson congratulating him "on your determination to stand in person at the peace conference for international justice and a league of free nations."

Among those interested in developing the Massachusetts branch is Edward F. Gay, dean of the graduate school of business administration at Harvard and director of the bureau of planning and statistics of the United States shipping board.

BULGARIAN PROOF SAFETY BOX FOR TOURISTS FOOLS THE PICKPOCKETS

One little section of the world at least has been made safe for the traveler who owns precious jewels, thanks to a device perfected by W. H. Pearson, mayor of Burlingame, California. It is a safe for valuables placed on a dummy clock stand at a street intersection in San Francisco where automobile tourists may deposit their belongings under care of the starter for the Peninsula Rapid Transit company. He alone knows the combination, and is personally responsible for the contents until the patrons return. The box shown in the picture, is of steel and is said to be burglar proof.

When the British forces which drove the Huns from Lille entered that historic French city there were flags and smiles and flowers and cheers for the victorious Tommies, but—

When the first French soldier followed them in, he was given a reception unequalled in the annals of history. He may have been nearly smothered, but he liked it. The lower picture is evidence of that.

ment the German couriers received in Holland. On learning that they were given an entire railway compartment, the soldier said he guessed the Dutch should have the same privilege in Germany. He told the courier to go to the military commandant's office. There the courier found an old time officer who at first sternly refused permission. He granted it instantly, however, when told that the soldiers had given their permission. He told the courier to be sure and get a visa from the consul before leaving.

On the train, the courier found a general at a table. Soon three common soldiers entered took off their haversacks and seated themselves at the general's table. Without saluting or even noticing the general they began to eat.

Another new arrival in Switzerland is a Russian from Odessa who entered Germany by way of Breslau, Lillovsk and Warsaw. He was worried lest his insufficient knowledge of German and his marked Russian accent might make trouble so he did not talk for hours. Finally, however, speech became imperative. His fellow travelers demanded his identity and when the Russian revealed it they fairly deluged him with attention. One traveler offered him a cigar and another a bottle of wine. The Germans conversed affably and adopted French as the language more familiar to the Russian.

The Russian reached Switzerland convinced that the Germans in overturning their government also overturned most of their one-time customs. He said their habits of thinking had changed as no one ever had believed possible.

PARIS, Nov. 29.—(Havas)—The minister of marine has ordered the discharge on Dec. 10 unless they prefer otherwise, of all sailors forty years of age or more, or those who are the fathers of at least four children. It is estimated that about 7000 seamen will thus be released for service in the merchant marine.

HOSPITAL BED TAG RESPONSIBLE FOR STRANGEST MISSING CHILD CASE

What was for a week regarded as the strangest case of child-disappearance since the famous Charlie Ross case 50 years ago has just been cleared up in the restoration of Josephine Silva, 3, to her frantic parents in Oakland, Cal.

During that time she was lying ill in a hospital under another name while the entire community was searching.

She dropped out of sight after she was taken to the municipal hospital, suffering from influenza. No trace could be found beyond her entry in the hospital books.

Every clue had been run down, the presumption being that the child had been kidnapped, without result.

A little hospital bed tag was responsible for her "disappearance."

When the police, her parents, and officials were about to give up the search, the Baby hospital of Oakland called the Red Cross and announced that the Italian woman supposed to be the mother of a child which had been under treatment told them when they tried to give her the child that she "didn't want no more kids. Got enough now." What should they do with her, they asked.

The Red Cross colonel broke all speed records getting to the baby hospital. And the lost was found.

It was a very simple mistake. A child bearing the name Amarel had just been taken from the bed where Josephine was put at the hospital. The place was crowded and nurses rushed. In the shuffle the child's chart was not changed, and Josephine became Amarel, until Mrs. Amarel was called upon to receive her erstwhile child.

REGAN FILES AFFIDAVIT

City Solicitor Files Another Affidavit in Street Railway Case

The following affidavit of Gardner W. Pearson has been filed in the Massachusetts district court by City Solicitor William D. Regan in support of the motion filed by the city of Lowell, through Mr. Regan, in opposition to the discontinuance of a number of lines of the Bay State Street Railway Co. in this city. Mr. Regan's original motion was filed several days ago and with it were two affidavits signed by Alexander Duncanson, inspector of claims in the law department. Mr. Pearson's affidavit is in further support of the motion. It is as follows:

In the District Court of the United States for the District of Massachusetts.

The Archibald McNeil & Sons Company, Complainant, vs. Bay State Street Railway Company, Defendant. No. 824. In Equity.

Affidavit of Gardner W. Pearson in Support of the City of Lowell in Its Opposition to the Discontinuance of Service Over Lines Within Said City, 1, Gardner W. Pearson, of Lowell, Massachusetts, do hereby depose and say:

That I have lived in Lowell, Massachusetts, for over forty years continuously and now reside at 49 Clitheroe street.

That I am an attorney-at-law and an expert on patents and on machinery and that for many years my main office has been in Lowell, Massachusetts.

That from 1847 to 1888, I was postmaster of Lowell and as part of my duty was the arranging of letter carriers' routes, I became familiar with all parts of the city, and also became familiar with steam and electric railroad schedules in connection with carrying the mails.

That for four years between 1911 and 1916 I was the assistant general of Massachusetts and among my duties was that of solving transportation problems.

I have carefully read the opinion of Howard F. Fritch in his affidavit sworn to Nov. 20, 1918, filed in the above action, and note that he makes no recommendations but leaves the inference that certain routes part of the plant of the Bay State street railway company should be discontinued or shut down entirely.

Assuming that his estimates of general averages for the entire system are correct, the discontinuance of any particular route would reduce his stated expenditures per car hour from $2.16 to $2.02, leaving overhead or fixed costs which must still be met of at least $1.14.

He does not state that discontinuing the routes named would save $2.16 per car hour as that manifestly is not the measure of savings. Discontinuing such routes would cut off all revenue therefrom but leave overhead or fixed charges nearly the same.

At present on all the Lowell routes indicated, two-man cars are used, but the character of the traffic is such that with one-man cars, having suitable equipment which could readily be installed at small expense, one-half the cost of conducting transportation, sixty-one cents, could be saved, reducing his estimated maximum cost of $2.16 to $2.02.

The schedule on all these routes could be so changed as to run cars less frequently, as from fifteen minutes to thirty, and from thirty minutes to hourly, thus operating much fewer car hours. Assuming that trips were made with half the present frequency, the saving would be one-half the following:

On power $.675
Conducting transportation 1.222
Injuries and damages125

Total $2.024

The saving of one-half would be $1.01, which would reduce his estimate to $2.02.

Assuming that receipts would not fall off when the hours of service were reduced, the average receipts per car hour on the Lowell lines under consideration would be doubled, i.e., $1.02, ranging from $5.84 down to $3.09.

Assuming that the receipts fell off 50 per cent, the Broadway-High street, Pawtucketville-Christian Hill, and Lawrence street lines would show a profit, and the other lines would show a less deficit, except Lakeside, than if they were discontinued while overhead charges remained.

In my opinion, based upon a residence of forty years in Lowell, decreasing the trips one-half would not reduce the revenue one-half.

The general averages cannot fairly be applied to the routes such as Anderson street and Vermont avenue, where the end of the route is thinly settled as such ends increase the hours with out a corresponding increase in revenue.

It is my opinion from my knowledge of conditions particularly in the city of Lowell and from a careful examination of the methods employed by the Bay State street railway in keeping track of traffic losses, that discontinuing the lines indicated would result in a much greater net loss to the company than would be caused by a careful rearrangement of schedules.

It is my opinion that a rearrangement of schedules would permit a fewer trips and the use of one-man cars in some cases, and that the fairly satisfactory service to be maintained on all the Lowell routes in issue at a profit to the company.

Thank God for Great Victory and the invader had been driven back in defeat, he said.

General Pershing paid tribute to the dead and wounded, urged the soldiers to thank God for the victory and declared that a new vision of duty to God and country had come to all. American mothers, he said, awaited with loving hearts, the homecoming of their gallant sons.

Impressive Service

An impressive Thanksgiving service was held today at the Great General Headquarters. The troops were paraded without arms and the officers and men held a meeting which was attended by local dignitaries and the members of allied military missions here. The Rev. Charles Henry Brent, former Protestant Episcopal bishop for the Philippine Islands and now working among the American troops, read the president's proclamation announcing Thanksgiving day. General Pershing made the following address:

Gen. Pershing's Address

"Follow Soldiers: Never in the history of our country have we as a people, come together with such full hearts on this greatest of all Thanksgiving days. The moment throbs with emotion seeking to find full expression. Representing the high ideals of our countrymen and cherishing the spirit of our forefathers who first celebrated this festival of Thanksgiving we are proud to have repaid a debt of gratitude to the land of Lafayette and to have lent our aid in saving civilization from destruction."

Invaders Driven Out

"The unscrupulous invader has been driven from the devastated scenes of his unholy contest. The tide of conflict which during the dark days of mid-summer threatened to overwhelm the allied forces has been turned into glorious victory. As the sounds of battle die away and the beaten foe hurries from the field, it is fitting that the conquering armies should pause to give thanks to the God of battles, who has guided our cause aright."

Victory Gift to Nation

"Victory was our goal. It is a hard won gift of the soldier to his country. Only the soldier knows the cost of a gift we now present to the nation. As soldiers inspired by every spiritual sentiment, we have each silently prayed that the success of righteousness should be ours. Today, with thankfulness, we humbly acknowledge that His strength has given us the victory. We are thankful that the privilege has been given to us to serve in such a cause."

Tribute to Dead and Wounded

"In this hour of thanksgiving, our eternal gratitude goes out to those heroes who loved liberty better than life, who sleep yonder where they fell; to the maimed whose honorable scars testify stronger than words to their splendid valor, and to the brave fellows whose strong, relentless blows finally crushed the enemy's power."

"Nor in our prayers shall we forget the widow who freely gave the husband, more precious than her life, nor those who, in hidden heroism have impoverished themselves to enrich the cause, nor our comrades who in more obscure posts here and at home, have furnished by their toil to the soldiers at the front."

New Vision of Duty to God

"To many fame has come. New names have been inscribed on the roll of the immortals. To all have come a new outlook on life, a clearer perspective regarding its obligations, a more exalted conception of duty and honor and a deeper sense of responsibility to the nation and to God."

"May we give thanks that unselfish service has given us this new vision, that we are able to return to our firesides and our country with higher aims and a firmer purpose alike ennobling to ourselves and to those who have held long vigil and who have prayed for us that we might worthily represent them."

"This spirit that has won the victory is to become a permanent and indispensable mainstay of peace and happiness. It is not a matter of individual choice but of obligation that we should proudly carry it back with us. If the glory of our military service has been a spontaneous offering of loyalty, it is too priceless to be cast aside by indulgence and too sacred not to be cherished always."

Great Cause to Thank God

"Our nation awaits the return of its soldiers, believing in the stability of character that has come from self-discipline and self-sacrifice. Confident of the new power that the stern school of war and discipline has brought to each of us, American mothers await with loving hearts their gallant sons. Great cause, indeed, have we to thank God for trials successfully met and victories won. Still more should we thank Him for the golden future, with its wealth of opportunity and its hope of a permanent universal peace."

JEAN'S BOSTON TEAM

TRIMS LOWELL, 10 TO 3

"Big Fred" Jean and his Boston poloists came to Lowell last night and handed the local polo team the worst trimming of the season. The score was 10 to 3.

It was Jean's first local appearance of the season and he played his usual fast and effective game. While assuming the position of halfback, he showed that he could fill that role just as cleverly as he can his regular berth, center. A large number of local friends of the famous player attended the game, and when he came on to the floor he was accorded a fine reception. He was also presented a beautiful bouquet.

The ball rolled with the visitors, and all members of the Hub outfit went at top speed, completely baffling the Lowell quintet. Kid Williams and Phil Jason were the scoring heroes of the night, each getting five goals. Alexander scored one, but Boston lost a point on fouls. The game was very rough, five fouls being called, Boston committed four and Lowell one.

Boston got the jump right at the start, and while Lowell fought hard all the way they were unable to overcome their opponents. Asquith, the Lowell halfback was injured in the second period, and he was forced to retire. This brought Buckley into the game and resulted in a shift in the lineup, that worked to the disadvantage of Lowell.

Asquith returned to the game in the final period, but the team was beaten. While all hands worked desperately, their efforts were futile. Mulligan, the speedy Lowell rush, scored what is believed to be a record, in taking one off the spot and driving it into the cage in just two seconds. This came in the first period, and the local flash was accorded due recognition for his wonderful performance. The score:

Fred Jean is still there.
Kid Williams was in old time form last night.

Providence will play here on next Tuesday night.

Phil Jason, while playing out of position as a center, turned in a wonderful exhibition.

Jean covered the Lowell offense very effectively and while Harkins, Griffith and Mulligan worked their heads off, they could not seem to get by the big fellow.

The pennant won by Lowell last season will be unfurled on next Tuesday night. Providence was runner up last season and consequently has the honor of participating in the ceremonies.

MEL COOGAN MATCHED TO MEET PETE HARTLEY

The Crescent A.A. will reopen on next Thursday night, and a fine card has been arranged to signalize the resumption of activities. Martin Flaherty, who was appointed to succeed Mel Coogan, has put in a very busy week, and has succeeded in signing an array of talent, that should bring one of the best shows ever staged in Lowell. For the main attraction, Mel Coogan, the sensational New York, R. L. boxer will meet the equally famous Pete Hartley of New York. In the semi-final Frank Mullins, of Lowell will oppose Ed Francis of Lawrence.

In the preliminaries two matches of considerable local interest will be pulled off. Happy Conley and Joe Armstrong, both of this city, will appear in one six rounds, and Johnny Boyle of Lowell and Jack Williams of Lawrence will entertain in the other.

The bout between Conley and Armstrong in addition to being an exhibition between two rivals, will also determine the local bantamweight championship.

The club directors have decided to have a new referee and are negotiating to bring one of the best in these parts to Lowell.

PR. GEORGE UNDERWOOD

Hero Back From the Battle

Fields of France Honored by Friends

Battle-scarred and limping about with a crutch as a result of injuries received on the battlefield in France, while doing his bit to free the world of Kaiserism, Private George Underwood, has returned to his home on Bourne street, after an absence of two years' service in Uncle Sam's army. To say that his return was a welcome one would be stating it mildly, for the brave young soldier has been busy receiving congratulations and shaking hands with a host of friends since his arrival, and if he has many more receptions like the one tendered him last evening, he will need a new right arm, for last night was the "big" night, and none less than one hundred friends clasped his hand and warmly congratulated him.

Last night's reception was an absolute surprise to Private Underwood, and when a small army of his friends bombarded his home, he surrendered and the invaders immediately took possession and merriment reigned supreme from that moment.

After Private Underwood had greeted the guests and expressed his delight at being captured by the "enemy," General Eugene McCann, in a clever speech, presented Private Underwood, on behalf of the assembled army, a beautiful gold watch and chain, and a Liberty bond. Although overcome with emotion, the recipient responded fittingly, thanking the generous and thoughtful donors for their beautiful token. Not being satisfied with a speech of acceptance, the guests demanded a war speech, and to this Private Underwood acquiesced, and while he spoke extemporaneously, his story was very interesting.

"The war," he said, "was a terrible affair. No verbal picture could do justice to it, and every time I think of Gen. Sherman, I am convinced that he spoke the truth. When our regiment, the 101st arrived in France, we were immediately drilled in the new style of warfare, in order to cope with the brutal style introduced by the Germans. After three months' training we took our places in the trenches and fought day and night without a let-up, many times during a rainstorm, with the water up to our knees, and although we wore rubber boots, our feet were cold continually, for a rainstorm in France invariably lasts a week. So you can readily see that a soldier's life in the trenches was not a path of roses by any means."

"The Germans as a whole were a cowardly set. When they outnumbered the allies ten to one they would fight like demons, but when they met an equal number of doughboys fighting behind the Stars and Stripes they quit cold. In fact, it was generally admitted by the German officers that the moment the Americans faced the Hun the tide began to turn in favor of the allies."

"Terrible atrocities were committed by the brutal Huns, not even the children escaping their fendishness. In one city in France we found children in the hospitals with their ears cut off and otherwise maltreated. The cruelty of the Hun knew no bounds."

"It was in the Toul sector that a German shell struck me, breaking my right foot and left arm. The battle in this sector was terrific, lasting day and night for two weeks. After being treated at the base hospital in Toul, I was sent to God's own country for treatment at the government hospital in Lakewood, N. J., where I have been for the past three months. During all the time that the American soldiers were on the firing line never did they fear the outcome of the war, no matter how dark the war clouds hung overhead. In conclusion, I want to say a good word for the Salvation Army. That's an organization that did real charitable work on the battlefield. No task was too big or too dangerous for them, and I cannot say too much for their generosity. When we came out of the trenches after a long, hard battle, these brave lasses were right on hand with hot coffee, doughnuts and pie, a menu which the average soldier considers a banquet in the trenches."

Private Underwood is 19 years of age and has had quite a military career, having seen service on the Mexican border as well as "over there." He was but 16 when he enlisted in old Company M, Ninth regiment, at the time of the Mexican trouble. When the United States entered the European war he accompanied Company M to Camp Devens, when after a short time that company was transferred to the 101st regiment. This regiment was the first Massachusetts contingent to sail for France.

Another member of the Underwood family accompanied him, in the person of Private Leslie Underwood, who also saw service on the Mexican border.

Immediately following Private Underwood's speech, Private George L. Wayne of Collinsville, another injured soldier, addressed the gathering. He is suffering from a fractured arm, as a result of being in contact with a German shell.

A delightful concert was enjoyed during the evening in which the following contributed:

Recitation, "The Holy Kiss," Miss Agnes Dunn; Solos, Henry Gravholt; Eugene Dunn; Solos, Master Herbert Taylor. Misses Theresa Slattery, Marion Underwood, Josephine Dean, Mrs. Fletcher and Julia Lynch; quartet selections, Wamest quartet; duet, Miss Catherine Monahan and Mrs. Sargent; butterfly dance, Miss Josephine Dean and Miss Catherine Monahan.

It was a late hour when the party broke up and all fortunate enough to be present will remember the occasion for a long time.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

A large body of friends gathered at the home, Wednesday evening, of Miss Hazel Hanna, 17 Pine Hill Street, the occasion being her eighteenth birthday. She was presented a beautiful watch and silver ring. The evening was spent in various musical selections and games, followed by dancing. A buffet lunch was served later in the evening. A solo was rendered by Miss Helen Hanna, of Concord, Mass. Those present were Mrs. Hanna, Mrs. Mooney, Mrs. Shackleton, Miss Ruth Hanna, Miss Louise Holstein, Miss Edna Sullivan, Miss Olive McGreger and the Misses Violet and Elizabeth Mooney.

528 MEN DISCHARGED AT CAMP DEVENS YESTERDAY—GEN. EDWARDS COMING

CAMP DEVENS, Nov. 30.—Five hundred and twenty-eight men who were soldiers when they got up yesterday morning were civilians last night, though they still wear the army uniform, and are either in their own homes again or are on their way there. Some of them won't be home for several days, however, for they represented 35 states. Among them were three from California, one from Texas, two from Florida, one from Washington and one from Quebec. About 500 of the 528 were New Englanders. All are from Cos. A and B, 1st Development Battalion.

Before noon yesterday about 200 men had been discharged and indications are that by tonight some 2500 men will have been discharged from the service.

Capt. Tait in Charge

Capt. George C. Tait, camp personnel adjutant, is in charge of the work of discharging the men. There are plenty of men who want to remain in the army. No call for volunteers is necessary. The men volunteer themselves and there are so many of them that the probabilities are a number will have to be disappointed and sent back to civil life when they would rather remain in the army.

Following the examination of the first three battalions of the depot brigade the other battalions making up that organization will take their turn, and with about 1500 men being turned out of the service daily it will not be long before the brigade is little more than a memory. When the work will start on the men in the depot.

Today 100 per cent of the men in this camp were allowed to go to their homes for 26 hours. They consisted wholly of men who were unable to go home for over Thanksgiving.

PRV. JOHN CUNNINGHAM MISSING IN ACTION

This morning's casualty list contains the name of Private John J. Cunningham of this city, reported missing in action. A telegram from the war department received by his relatives at 109 Bartlett street states that he has been missing since Oct. 5.

The missing soldier is a member of Co. C of the 16th Infantry. He entered the national service in May, 1917, and was sent to Camp Gordon, Ga. The following July he went overseas.

Private Cunningham is 22 years old and was formerly employed in the Lawrence street plant of the U. S. Cartridge Co. His parents live in Ireland.

VETERANS' NIGHT BY SONS OF VETERANS

Admiral Farragut camp, Sons of Veterans, held a most enjoyable veterans' night last evening in Post 120, G.A.R. hall in Merrimack street. A large number of the veterans were present and the evening's program was a most interesting one.

Mayor Thompson was one of the speakers and he extended his appreciation to the old warriors for the part they had done in their war. Another speaker was Corp. James P. Addison, formerly of the Scottish Rifles, who had been wounded and passed a number of times in the early days of the present war. Corp. Addison endeavored to go across again with Battery F of this city, but was discharged on account of physical disability. Recently he has been doing excellent recruiting work for the Gas Hounds here in Lowell.

CONCERT AND DANCE AT ASSOCIATE HALL

The citizens athletic club, Camp Devens held a most pleasant and successful concert and dance at Associate hall last evening. About 1000 young people were present and the entertainment by the soldiers was both novel and interesting. Capt. Edward W. Briggs of the Infantry battalion and several local city officials were on hand. The majority of the men in the athletic department had been given leave to come to Lowell and from the very drop of the hat they were out for a good time.

The soldier entertainers who offered to the public were:

WASHINGTON COMMENTS ON WILSON'S PEACE CONFERENCE TRIP

Extra Session of Congress May Be Called on Taxation Fight--Soldiers Want to Get Home--Gen. March's Interviews

Special to The Sun

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 29.—(Repub.)—Publicans are up in arms over the proposed trip of the president. Commenting on the "Who's who" problem while the president is abroad indicates that there cannot be a president and an acting president at the same time. The question of "inability to discharge his duty" would seem to put the president entirely out of commission, and put the vice president into his shoes, according to the general opinion here. Other comments are to the effect that had the policy of the allied countries been followed by the administration, it would have been Secretary of State Lansing who could represent the United States, sitting with equal rank with the premiers of Great Britain, France and other countries. If the president attempts to give the United States a higher place at the conference than is given other nations, we shall suffer. If he puts himself on the official level of premier, it seems to leave us without an executive on the official level of other nations. So whichever way you look at it, embarrassing results may follow. But the president's address before congress on Monday may largely modify these views.

Soldiers Want to Come Home

The desks of congressmen are piled high with letters from boys in the service asking to be "rushed out." Demobilization is too slow to suit them and apparently the fear of a spread of militarism throughout the country is groundless. When the war was on the boys rushed into service and fought like heroes. Now it is over, they show the same zest in their desire to put spurs, boots and khaki in the back-ground and be again hustling Yankee business men.

Where the men have been given the choice of remaining in service or returning to civilian life, it is said less than 2 per cent have availed themselves of the chance to remain. Shoulder straps and gold braids seem to have lost their charm now that peace is here, and whether or not a sufficient number of men in the officers corps will stay in the service voluntarily, to properly maintain an adequate corps of officers for future building up of the army, may be a matter of doubt, if the demands for release keep up their present pace.

Commenting on this phase of demobilization, it has been said "it's the Yankee spirit. The boys were enthusiastic to get across but now it's over the 'next thing is something else.' And that's the Yankee of it. It is in this way military men account for the amazing docility with which men are returning to the ways of peace and bustling back to business life." But congressmen can do nothing towards hurrying up releases, except in cases of great emergency. Otherwise it must be done through the regular military and naval channels.

Universal Military Training

One of the great questions to come before congress will be that of universal military training, and it will be interesting to note what opinion is expressed by the million or two men who will be back from overseas duty in time to tell their congressmen what they think about it from practical experience. They know how it is to take up the work of actual war after only a few weeks' intensive training. What will they recommend for their younger brothers and their sons? They will know better than any one else what universal training would mean, and they know what it means to buck up against an army of fighters trained by long months or years of steady training and subjection to military discipline. They will have plenty of time before the question is voted on by congress to get in touch with their own congressmen and inform them how it has worked out under their personal observation. There will be no mere theory in their viewpoint.

Extra Session Probable

Already the republicans and democrats are lining up to make or postpone the question of taxation for 1920.

Apparently the differences are unresolvable and, if that is the case, the president may be forced to call an extra session in the early spring, however reluctant he may be to put to test his control of the new congress. The democrats will try to fire their last gun by mapping out the line of taxation to be followed the coming fiscal year. The republicans will fight to prevent it on the ground that the outgoing party has no right to pledge the country to what it will do under republican rule, especially where the result of the election showed so plainly that the country believed republicans should map out the line to be followed. The democrats have issued a challenge that no revenue bill shall pass while they hold the majority votes, unless it be one to their liking and framed by themselves. The republicans quickly accepted the challenge and say no bill shall pass which involves the country in democratic principles of revenue, which must be carried on long after the country has passed into republican control. That might mean not only a holding of the revenue bill but also of all necessary appropriation bills to run the government after July 1, 1919. So the president's hand may be forced, and an extra session made imperative, both by democratic and republican action this winter.

Gen. March's Interviews

Gen. March, chief of staff, has stated that the troops will be returned home at the earliest possible moment, with gas men, aviators and tank men in the lead, and that local camps will be abandoned in many cases. Just what the definite program is and when and how the troops will be returned is a matter not yet made public, but the former will be given to the press within a day or two. In his last interview with newspaper correspondents, Gen. March spoke in high praise of the 26th Division, which is the New England Division. It was in active service from start to finish and was in action when the armistice was signed. The general was in high spirits at the weekly conference and smiled as he referred to the splendid achievements of the various divisions. These newspaper interviews are events to be counted on, for through them only the details of conditions at home and abroad are given out by the war department, in the "Map Room," the walls of which are covered with big maps, lines of red ribbon marking the location of the American army. A military aid stands at the door, to see that none but the press are admitted. Gen. March walks into the room accompanied by a couple of aids, takes a stand in front of the great map of Europe and points out the whereabouts of the troops as he talks. It is said that Phillips Brooks, Episcopal bishop of Massachusetts, could talk faster than any man in the country, but Gen. March can lead him a close second. All questions must be submitted in writing the day before the interview, and the general reads the answers with a speed that would do credit to the winner of a blue ribbon at a running race. Official stenographers are put to a hard test to keep pace with him. The correspondents make pol-hoos and scratches with feverish haste, but only the official report saves them when he talks of Russian cities, French villages and German outposts with their impossible names and still more impossible spellings, all recited off in one breath.

Congressman Rogers

Congressman Rogers has not yet returned to Washington from Camp Zachary Taylor, Kentucky. Demobilization comes slowly but although the congressman from the fifth district has not made his decision, authoritatively not even yet it is fully expected his resignation will be rendered and accepted this week.

Mr. Rogers is slated for the chairmanship of the important committee on elections No. 2, of which he is now ranking minority member. He is also a member of the committee on foreign affairs which will have many of the great diplomatic questions of reconstruction brought before it during the coming session. RICHARDS.

was the most brutal exhibition undoubtedly ever witnessed here."

"Dixon walked to the station between Inspectors Laflamme and Libbey, with Chief Howard, Inspector Allen, Manager O'Rourke and a few hundred spectators in the rear. At the police station Manager O'Rourke said that the fight was similar to the one at the Opera House except that Young Hennessy was not as good a man as Morarty, and was knocked out with a slight cut over his eye. The papers called it very brutal and Judge Stone ordered the arrest of the two belligerents."

The old Sun also records that Dixon was fined $100 by Judge Stone in the Lawrence court on the following day. But the decision was criticized as very unjust. "The chief trouble seemed to be that Hennessy thought it was his privilege to bang Dixon wherever or how he could, while Dixon was required to reduce the number of idyllic blows. When the pugilist felt that the amateur set out to smash him, he realized that he must defend his anatomy as well as his reputation and hence the unlooked for ending of what was expected to be a good natured sparring exhibition."

The spectators did not release the performance as the belligerent brothers used to do before giving a boxing exhibition. Martin Flaherty and his brother Joe have often given exhibition bouts that to the uninitiated appeared in "dead earnest" and were regarded as "more exciting" than some of the real prize fights. The "pals" had agreed upon certain spectacular effects that showed up all the tricks of the art with very striking effect. Hennessy in the Lawrence exhibition proved a heavy hitter, but he was outwitted in the science of pugilism and Dixon simply laid to him him hard in order to hold him.

Rev. Wm. M. O'Brien's Death

The old Sun of Nov. 25 records the death of Rev. William M. O'Brien in part as follows:

"It was with great sadness that the people of this city heard this morning of the death of Rev. William M. O'Brien of Winchester at the parochial residence of St. Michael's church."

"He came to this city a few days ago and was suddenly taken ill of pneumonia. Few people of Lowell knew that Rev. Wm. M. O'Brien was in the city; even many of the clergymen did not know of his death which occurred at 9 o'clock, until noon. The deceased clergyman was for twelve years a curate of St. Patrick's church. He was a cousin of Rev. Wm. O'Brien, now of St. Michael's church. He came to this city in 1875 and after twelve years of service he was appointed pastor of St. Michael's church in Winchester."

Michael's church. He came to this city in 1875 and after twelve years of service he was appointed pastor of St. Michael's church in Winchester."

Rev. Wm. O'Brien was known as "Little" Father William. He was a native of Nenagh Co. Tipperary, Ireland and was 42 years old at the time of his death.

K. of C. Anniversary
Although the local council of the Knights of Columbus observed its 25th anniversary on November 15, the actual date was March 12, 1893. The observance was postponed on account of the war, but was finally made coincident with the presentation of the Cardinal O'Connell fountain and bust to the city.

The old Sun had an account of the event at the time, but it attracted little attention. It was as an insurance order that the organization was first projected at New Haven, Conn., the founder being Rev. M. J. McGivney and the aim, "to render mutual aid and assistance to the members of said society and their families." For that purpose it was incorporated in January, 1882. "Lowell Council, No. 72, was organized March 12, 1892, practically all of the charter members being interested in its organization. The council was instituted by the supreme officers, assisted by Deputy James F. Hayes, the ceremonies taking place in Elks hall, on Middle street, in the presence of half a hundred knights, prominent among whom were Messrs. Phelan, Colwell, Carrigan, and Sullivan of the supreme council of New Haven, and Messrs. Cummings, Doherty, Brennan, and Sullivan of Boston, Grand Knight Mahoney and Dr. Donovan of Lawrence, and Dr. Donovan of Lynn."

The charter members were: Thomas C. Lee, John E. Drury, Roger J. Lang, Thomas P. Boulger, Hugh C. Mosher, William J. Coughlin, Charles D. Foley, Frank McAviney, Michael J. Dowd, John J. Cluin, Eugene P. McCusker, Peter F. Condon, Patrick O'Donnell, Stephen J. Johnson, Patrick O'Donnell, William J. Kelley, Richard B. Allen, Michael J. Burns, George P. Green, Charles E. Donlon, Dr. Hugh Walker, John H. Coffey, Dennis A. Sullivan, Constantine O'Donnell, Edward Cawley, Michael J. Johnson, Thomas M. Bolton, Humphrey O'Sullivan, Robert J. Thomas, Thomas F. Harrington. Twelve of the charter members have since passed away.

The first officers chosen were: G. K. Thomas, P. Lee, Dr. E. J. Cluin, chaplain, Rev. T. F. McAviney, chaplain, Rev. M. J. Dowd, in sec. H. C. Mosher; rec. sec. D. A. Sullivan; treas. Dr. S. J. Johnson; warden, Michael J. Burns; O. G. Thomas M. Bolton; I. G. Patrick Condon.

The present officers are Robert R. Thomas, G. K. George P. Briggan, D. G. K.; financial secretary, Patrick Breen; recording secretary, Patrick Nevin; chancellor, Hugh J. Molloy; treasurer, Thomas F. Fitzgerald; chaplain, Rev. D. J. Heffernan; warden, Thomas D. Delaney; inside guard, Thomas Tobin; outer guard, John J. Hayes; trustees, Dr. Cawley, Joseph L. Cronin, John F. Golden.

The Lowell council, K. of C. has about 300 members, nearly all young men. Of these 170 are in the service of the government in the army or navy.

About one-third of the members carry insurance under that branch of the order and the others are social or associate members. In 1905 the Genoa club, organized under the local council, purchased the Genoa club grounds in Tyngsboro, which with pavilion and other appropriate buildings form an ideal summer home. It is about a mile beyond Lakeview extending from the Nashua road to the river. The order has come into national prominence on account of its activity in war work service and its patriotic endeavors in every direction. The society is strictly non-political so that politicians do not seek admission with the hope of securing the votes of the members.

SUN WRITER FIRST INTO GERMANY
CABLES STORY OF HUNLAND

Thiery Sees German Privates, Their Rifles Thrown Away, Hoist the Red Flag and March Home Singing

BASLE, Switzerland, Nov. 30.—(I have just come out of Germany. I was the first American correspondent to cross the Rhine.

Two American Red Cross workers, girls, entered Germany with me. They are Cheta Geary, 1155 Garfield street, Denver, and Letitia Curtis, 1516 Massachusetts ave., San Francisco.

We visited St. Ludwig, Hunningen, Norderf, we inspected the railroad bridges across the Rhine into Loerbach at the foot of the Black Forest; we went around behind the fortified Mount Trilleux.

In Baden, flamboyantly red-bellied, we saw thousands of German soldiers marching home. And, most amazing, they were singing—they were joyously singing:

"Wir halt den Krieg verloren.
Nun gehen wir nach heim!
(We have lost the war—now we are going home.)"

A thousand released Italian prisoners of war, on their way home, were cheered lustily by the homeward-bound Germans.

Unassigned German officers who appeared at the roadside were not saluted.

The retreat was orderly. Many of the German privates had thrown away their rifles and were carrying red banners.

I talked with a German officer, Lt. Snelbelen.

"We are glad the Kaiser is gone," he said. "We had the republic!"

In Baden each Rhineland home I saw was bedecked with the red flag of the socialist government and the populace rejoicing at their escape from the shells of the allied armies which they have missed so narrowly.

The frontier guards were withdrawn across the Rhine, but one way was barred at Freiburg and we returned through Alsace south of Mulhausen and saw the tremendous demonstrations of joy with which the Alsations greeted the coming of the French and the release from German domination.

Women Enter Fortifications

Happy bands of Alsatian women and children on the heels of retreating Germans took possession of impregnable fortifications. I visited twice the Rhine bridgehead of Loerbach, where the Germans had planned to make a last stand defense, the bridge at Karlsruhe.

NEW WORLD LEAGUE OF NATIONS
WOULD INSURE PEACE

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 30.—The following article written by John Barrett, director-general of the Pan American union, explains the peace results obtained by a league of nations formed in the new world, and which may furnish the model for a worldwide league of all nations:

The Americas already have a great league of nations. In Washington is the prototype of a world organization. The Pan American union represents today the highest perfected form of a group of nations working together for their common good.

In all the discussion that is now going on about a league of nations there should be special attention given to the duties, work and scope of the Pan American Union. That this suggestion is well warranted is proved by the remarkable fact that since the Pan American union, formerly known as the International Union of American Republics, was reorganized at the Pan American conference held at Rio de Janeiro in 1916, there has been no war between any two American republics and the moral influence of this union has probably prevented during that period six wars between different American countries.

One most impressive fact in regard to the Pan American union should be in the mind of every peace delegate to the coming Versailles conference. There assemblies on the first Wednesday of every month in the governing board room of the Pan American building, a council of all the American republics, in the form of the secretary of state of the United States, who is chairman ex-officio, and the ambassadors and ministers of the Latin American republics accredited to Washington. They sit around a great oval table in a most dignified environment; they sit elbow to elbow, and shoulder to shoulder, the representative of each government on an equality with the representatives of all the others. There is no predominance or domination of any one government or representative. The secretary of state, as the representative of the United States, has no authority that the others do not possess, except that of acting as presiding officer, which position he holds by the consent of all the other governments. Each representative sits in a chair carrying the name and the coat of arms of his country. There is perfect freedom of discussion and always an unhampered exchange of views.

They take up not only the administration of the Pan American union as an international bureau devoted to the development of peace, friendship, intercourse and commerce among the American republics, but issues involving the relations of the republics.

They frame the program for the various Pan American conferences and they induce or disapprove of various projects involving practical Pan Americanism, the best dedication of which is "the co-operation of all the American republics for their common good."

They appoint sub-committees of ambassadors and ministers to consider rule, the network of concrete trenches and dugouts and gun mounts. The shell-proof quarters, which would house a thousand soldiers, solidly planted in the hilly ground, itself a natural fortress.

Three barbed wire nets, forming a semi-circle on the west bank of the Rhine, protected the bridgehead.

The Alsations have disemboweled the fortress of metal and wood and discarded German ammunition. Death traps were absent.

I inspected the reserve defenses on the Baden side, with their miles of barbed wire, commencing at the East river edge and extending for miles along the bank.

I was there when the first French officer arrived in an automobile, with the tri-color streaming from its front, heralding the conquerors, and the Germans, apparently without regret, relinquished the useless Rhine stronghold.

Here in Basle I have seen German nobility fleeing by airplane, loaded down with gold and finding safe refuge here.

I have seen German officers interned here tearing off uniforms in anger at the surrender of their army.

The cessation of the distant battle sounds has produced a strange stillness here. Basle heard the guns for four years, and the silence is abnormal.

The exodus of German nobility, carrying as much of their treasure with them as they can, began with the certainty that an armistice was to be signed, and continues daily.

A German prince who escaped in an airplane loaded with gold has been interned here as a formality. He is safe. His wealth is safe.

Hundreds of German propagandists are stranded here with the cessation of imperial funds, waiting to see what government will prevail in their own land.

Switzerland is a clearing house for refugees, for Red Cross workers, for returned prisoners, for diplomatic representatives and propagandists. It is like one vast hotel with a multitude of convention gatherings of various nationalities, a perfect Babel of sound.

Unending, trainloads of ragged, starved Italian prisoners coming out of Germany are rushed through Switzerland to Italy, their disembarkation in Switzerland forbidden.

such questions, for example, as the neutrality of the republics in war and various problems of peace, commerce and trade.

It has been remarked by many statesmen and students of international affairs that if there had existed in Europe before the world war broke out a Pan American union—that is an all-European union similar to the Pan American union in Washington and a common council room and table, having a regular monthly or other frequent date of meeting, this fearful struggle might have been avoided, or at least delayed until a special council of the nations concerned had settled their difficulties.

Although the international agreement among the American republics provides for the Pan American union and its maintenance and defines the responsibilities of the governing board, it says nothing about their having authority to consider and adjust difficulties between two or more of the American republics. Yet, the moral influence, the atmosphere, and the freedom of discussion of this board are almost as effective as if it possessed final authority for the prevention of war.

The most potent factor for peace, is the development of intercourse, commerce, good understanding, thorough acquaintance, and lasting friendship. The Pan American union, in its office, or practical work, is constantly carrying on what might be prescribed as a vast propaganda of peace.

In conclusion, the question may, therefore, be logically asked, if there already exists a practical and powerful organization of this kind for the 21 American republics, why should there not be a world organization with final powers in the matter of policing and preserving peace among the nations and carrying on a similar practical work of information?

Dogs' wool is being spun into comforts in England. King Edward, when alive, had a waistcoat from his Barzoi which he had himself clipped.

Amateur Pugilist Knocked Out
The following item from the old Sun will interest members of the sporting fraternity who in past years gave their attention to pugilism:

"At the Opera House last evening just previous to the sparring exhibition slated between George Dixon and Jimmie Morfarty, Inspectors Laflamme of this city and Libbey of Lawrence were seen to leave their seats in the audience and go to the rear of the stage while Chief Howard was noticed in the seat near the entrance to the stage.

"Many of the audience thought that they were about to stop the fight, but they did not and were there for the purpose of arresting Dixon, whom Patrick Hennessy, a young Lawrence boxer, charged with assault and battery, charged on Tuesday night Dixon's show was in Lawrence and as usual, Dixon offered to meet any of the ambitious local scrappers in a four round 'go.' Young Hennessy of that city accepted the offer. It is claimed by the Dixonites that Hennessy imagined that he was a match for Dixon and fought accordingly, while it is claimed on the other hand that both men took off the gloves. The Lawrence Eagle described a portion of it as follows: 'The fight had by this time assumed a brutal phase and cries of "Stop it, stop it" resounded through the theatre before the men had been at the second round half a minute. The audience had more than they wanted of prize-fighting. The men with strong stomachs turned sick at the sight which

FOR WOMAN AND THE HOME—HINTS FOR THE HOUSEHOLD—LATEST FASHION NOTES BY BETTY BROWN

WAR BONNETS RETREAT IN DISORDER! FRILLS ADVANCE

Hear about Fluffy Ruffles? She's back!

At Fashion G. H. New York, cables have been received from the American front in France as follows:

"Yanks starting home. Have Fluffy Ruffles meet troops at pier. Yanks sick of military modes and uniforms. Won't look at girls in khaki and overseas caps. Notify all daughters of fashion to can serviceable clothes and put on frills. Keep skirts short, silk hose long!"

That's the big news from the front line trenches! The Yanks are coming and they want to find their best girls and mothers and sisters "all dressed up" in their honor.

"Khaki and blue and gray uniforms, and red crosses and red triangles and S. A.'s and all the angelic girls inside them are simply great, and we honor and adore 'em on the battlefield—and forever and ever Amen," say the Yanks, "but we're sort of fed up on uniforms and when we come home—'S-s-s!' the kind of girl we want to see is all pink and white and gold and has on a pink dress and high-heeled slippers, and a big, floppy hat—and she don't care a bit whether she's helping us fellows—she's so interested in looking pretty and being happy! We're hungry to see the girls who can sing and laugh and dance; who don't talk about war, or try to look like a soldier or a war worker.

"We are certainly strong for the canteen girls, and the war workers and nurses and all the women who helped us out in France and here at home—they're the best girls in the world—but they'll look even better to us than they do now when they get back into ruffles and things.

"We're plain homesick for good looking American girls in good looking clothes."

Hear that, girls? One bet that spring styles will run to pink ribbons and frills!

FRENCHY! OH VERY FRENCHY

Here we receive a clever invention of the consumer's art—a magic means of making an old frock look decidedly new. It is merely a deep, deep cape collar of cream silk net elaborately braided in white silk soutache. The smart new oval neckline is observed in all its charm, and there is a chic, Frenchy shoulder fastening with a knot of black velvet.

the reason for his resignation from the president's cabinet is the inadequate compensation the position yields. But if one feels admiration for the secretary, what does respect he must feel for the president when reading the kindly letter of appreciation and regret with which the resignation was reluctantly accepted. There was no small prating of the violation of ethics, professional or otherwise, about Mr. McAdoo leaving his position in order to engage in employment yielding a greater emolument—simply a regret at the loss of a faithful helper who had rendered long service. The incident furnishes another instance of the bigness of the president and why he towers over many other men who are unable to let into their souls the light and the spirit and the kindly philosophy of life and let live.

The Age Begins Is

The following, taken originally from Punch and already widely copied, is too good not to share with Sun readers:

It happened in a grocery store. "Are these 'ere heggas fresh?" queried the customer.

"I ain't sayin' 'yer ain't," returned the clerk exultantly.

"I ain't arskin' yer is they aint; I'm arskin' yer is they is, is they?"

Levelling Processes of the War

The entry of many professional men and women into the industries, a condition brought about by the war, is bound to prove an important factor in the future of both labor and the professions. The effect of this entry will be a dissemination among a larger body of our citizens of the justice or injustice of labor's demands.

In other words, labor and the professions are being brought into closer relations than they ever have been before, and hereafter there should be a better understanding between these two classes of citizens. In the past there has been a sort of class aloofness between these two bodies, which worked to the advantage of neither. The professional person has set himself on a sort of pedestal on which there was standing room only for other professionals, and the mechanic, however skilled and well trained, ever was of another and inferior stratum.

Much of this feeling has been leveled by the war. No matter how pedantic, the professional must see that the success of the war is due in about equal measure to the soldier and the artisan. Yet all are necessary—soldier, artisan and professional. "Men cannot live unto himself alone," no matter how high his position, he is utterly dependent upon all other men. The difficulty has been that the different bodies, laborers and professionals, did not come into direct personal contact with each other. They knew each other only as they knew the products of their respective skill, and if the artisan looked upon the average professional as a consumer only, and if the professional failed to comprehend that frequently it requires an intelligence vastly greater than his own to produce or direct the production of the tangible commodities of the world, how could the better understanding grow?

As time goes on, more and more it will be seen that this war, frightful and disastrous as it has been, has taught to humankind many new lessons and has brought to light many old truths of which we were in danger of losing sight, recalling the words of the poet in regard to seeming misfortunes which not from the ground arise; O'er celestial blessings assume this dark disguise.

NOVEMBER MEN'S

By BIDDY BEE

The clever housekeeper will not allow her husband to monopolize the market page. There is important news for her on the same page which absorbs his attention. It is contained in the column marked Local Produce Market, with a headline which may remark that "Potatoes are Easter"—which means they are low-priced that day and it's a good time to invest in a few extra pecks or bushels. Sometimes there is a most valuable little story preceding the market quotations which shows the housewife that there is a plentiful supply of apples on the market at low price, or that butter and eggs have advanced two cents, but that good poultry is cheaper. Besides, the foods listed below the story show the marketer just what is to be had in the shops and with this list she can plan her food-buying and even her meals themselves, while sitting comfortably at home—thus saving much hunting about and indecision during the actual visit to the market. The prices quoted in the market page are wholesome, but the housewife soon learns that the retail dealer adds from one to five cents to the wholesale price, depending upon the supply, and general local conditions. A daily study of the local produce market is an easy way to save time and money, ladies!

EMERSON ALL STAR PLAYERS IN BIG ATTRACTION AT LOWELL OPERA HOUSE

The biggest stock attraction ever given on a local stage is scheduled by the Emerson All Star Players at the Lowell Opera House for the coming week when the musical comedy success, "Very Good Eddie" will be given as originally produced on Broadway. The piece is recognized as one of the brightest and liveliest attractions of its kind of the present day. In addition to the regular offering, the management will also present five big vaudeville acts, including Madge Barrows, the double-voiced soloist, the Bennett Sisters and a sparkling collection of Broadway chorus girls. Miss Barrows is a college girl whose short professional career has witnessed a marked advance in her profession.

Never has any musical show scored such a tremendous success everywhere as "Very Good Eddie." It played a year in New York, and met with opinion is summed up in the line from the New York Herald's review: "It's the gem of all musical comedies of a dozen years." In Chicago, where it ran five months, the News said: "It's the best musical show we have seen yet." In Boston, where it stayed 15 weeks and where it netted $200,000 to see it, the American referred to it as "the musical treat for many years." The same high regard for it was reflected in the criticisms of other large theatrical centres.

Manager Carroll promised local patrons something new and novel this season, and he's making good with a vengeance. Judging from his offering up to date. All of the lavish stage settings of the original production will be duplicated. All of the members of the company will be seen in congenial roles. Miss Jane Salisbury and Julian Nea are to be given an opportunity to display a wider range of versatility than is generally found in stock actors.

bad women, bad liquor, bad resorts and bad habits. Good women were insulted in the streets. Good men were cowed by the six-shooters in the holsters of the tin-born rascals. Crooks, vagrants, cow-punchers and phish-bellies. It was a bad place for any one that expected to live to a ripe old age and any one that intended to attend strictly to his own affairs. Then came "Truthful Tulliver."

"Truthful Tulliver" came down on the fold from another section of Texas. He entered unobtrusively with "Silver Lode" Thompson, his partner for "Truthful" was an editor by profession, and a contentman by inclination. With him "Truthful" brought a battered handpress, several racks of type-cases, an imposing stone, a big roller, and several hundred of "New" The "Glorious Hole" began to appear.

Then things began to happen—in this first-time shown in Lowell picture. The Royal will also offer exceptionally strong counter attractions, with Gladys Leslie in "The Mating," her latest five-act picture, and the fourth episode of "The Other Man," a real feature in itself, will also be arranged, along with "The Other Man," one of the funniest comedies in which "Fatty" Roscoe Arbuckle has ever appeared. He is assisted in his funmaking by "Al" St. John, the boy with pompadour hair-cut and the missing teeth. Get this in a great Monday and Tuesday program. Guess it'll be another packed house, so better get there early in order to secure a seat. Positively no advance in prices.

Lovers of clean and entertaining pictures will be able to enjoy an unusual treat at the Royal theatre on Sunday, when "No Children Wanted," an Oakdale production, starring Gloria Joy, the 7-year-old miss who has created a big stir in the film world, will be shown. This is said to be one of the most appealing and sympathetic interest stories seen here in many months, and is expected to enhance greatly the already large following of this delightful little player. The story deals with a little daughter of a cheerful home whose longing for the love of her father and mother suddenly is realized through most unexpected channels. Ethel Ritchie, R. Henry Grey, Nell Hardin and Daniel Giffether appear in support of the star.

A seven-act pictorialization of "David Copperfield," the famous Dickens story, and other attractions will complete one of the strongest Sunday shows ever offered.

THE FUNNY DECORATORS AT B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

Tomorrow's big bills at the B. F. Keith theatre will be composed of seven acts, six of which will have been brought forward from the present week, and in addition there will be the very excellent team of Keefe, Storey & Joy, which will shed a lot of clever musical numbers. Among the other acts are: Gypsy Singers, Quinn & Caverly, Ralph Smalley, James (Fats) Thompson, the "Now-a-Days" quartet and Hector, the mind-reading ace.

"The Decorators," one of Fred Ardath's hilarious bits of buffoonery, will just naturally climb into first place in the estimation of audiences next week. Ardath himself describes it as a "comedy of errors" and it may be said that no artistry, even of the most amateur variety, ever committed more blunders, and of a laughable kind, than do the performers in this act. Their decorating is a true form of camouflage, inasmuch as nothing matches. It is a form of cubist or futurist art, if one chooses to dignify it by either name, although in reality it is all a part of the art of routine laughter. This "The Decorators" do with a vengeance. The act begins with smiles and concludes with a kale of laughter.

Al and Fanny Stedman will present an act which is said to have many interesting, humorous and intensely human touches. Their name is to vaudeville what Chickering is to the piano world. Miss Stedman has served her laughing tonic in musical comedy, having appeared in "Hanky Panky" and

Uncle Sam Wants to Sell
Thirty Brand New Villages at Cost

BY RICHARD S. CHILDS
Of the United States Housing Corporation

The war ended, Uncle Sam has on his hands a dozen wooden cities, ranging in population from 1500 to 2000—temporary towns erected in remote wildernesses for explosive plants. These towns will in most cases be depopulated, plants dismantled and houses and dormitories taken apart and sold for use in other localities.

Ready for Occupancy

Uncle Sam also has on his hands about 20 new permanent villages. The principal ones of this type are Muscle Shoals, Ala., 1200 dwellings, and Perryville, Md., 160 dwellings, built and owned by the war department and operated under the department's supervision. There are 20 more villages just ready for occupancy, built by the Emergency Fleet corporation, ranging in size from a group of 30 dwellings in Bath, Me., to one of 1500 dwellings in Yorkshire village, near Camden, N. J.

In several other places, notably Bethlehem, Pa., Niagara Falls, Bridgeport, Conn., and Erie, Pa., the work of the United States Housing corporation is so far advanced that economy and common sense compel the finishing of the work, although the great majority of the corporation's 50 projects are being discontinued at various stages of completion.

The completed, permanent villages have been constructed only in those places where there is reasonable cer-ainty of a market for the houses after the war, subject merely to writing off the element of excessive cost due to the war conditions under which they were built, as compared with the post-war costs with which they must now compete.

Eliminating this war cost, Uncle Sam has 30 villages which he is ready to sell for whatever they will bring.

Noted Architects Employed

The properties divide themselves into two classes:

1. Those which are so small relatively to adjoining cities or scattered in small groups throughout the city that they are not separate from ordinary private property. These we call "building projects."
2. Those which are separate villages of such size and isolation as to constitute natural and complete social units. These are "town projects."

The first class can be sold as groups of houses to real estate operators or individuals on appropriate terms, with the assistance of local banks or employers. The second class gives an opportunity such as may never come again for trial in this country of the principle of group ownership of housing, along the lines of the co-partnership arrangements which are the basis of the famous English garden suburbs.

These towns are the products of famous architects and town planners. Each building has been constructed with due regard to the value of its neighbor and in harmony with the town plan. The grocery store does not intrude itself on a residential corner, nor confront the neighboring cottages with a bare blank brick side wall bearing a candy soap advertisement.

The individual occupant cannot spoil his property by painting his house a sky-blue pink or putting a dirty garage on his front lawn. By yielding to common control of the use of the property, workmen attain the advantage of a harmonious, well-kept, park-like environment.

These physical advantages may be "The Red Mill." Al is a composer and song writer, pianist and comedian. He has also demonstrated his work in musical comedy as well as in vaudeville. Marshall Montgomery, considered to be the world's leading ventriloquist, will also appear on this very good bill. It is said that during his act he eats an entire meal, something unheard of among ventriloquists or other performers—at least on the stage.

Muriel Window, one of the daintiest of singing comedienne, will come into instant favor. Her work is bound to touch every person in the audience. Miss Window sings songs which have been written for her exclusively. She makes complete costume changes after each song, and right on the stage, at that. A high-backed settee is what she relies on to accomplish the quick changes.

Libby Brown & Conlon will present a terpsichorean novelty, labelled "Dance in a Petite." It is said to be beautifully costumed and to hold many novelties. Rosanoff & Dorothy play respectively the violin and piano. They stick to the happy medium of compositions, neither going too high-brow or too jazzy in manner. Our old friends Mario & Duffy, the eccentric gymnasts, will present their comical eccentricities.

The second instalment of the official Red Cross pictures will also be shown during the week. These pictures have caused no end of favorable comment. The Pathe News pictorial and a film comedy will also be presented.

BOSTONIA LADIES' ORCHESTRA

WILL BE BIG ATTRACTION AT THE STRAND

The Bostonia Ladies' orchestra of 12 pieces, with Bella Yearon Renfrew in personal charge, an organization of musicians that has made a big name for themselves, will be the chief attraction at the Strand for the coming week. Lovers of good music will find this a real treat. The orchestra will be here all week.

Lewis S. Stone in "The Man of Bronze" and Olive Tell in "Secret Strings" will be featured in the program for the first part of the week, and the one and only Theda Bara in "When a Woman Sings" and Peggy Hyland in "Marriages Are Made" will be shown for the week-end bill. The usual comedies and weekly will also be shown.

obtained if these towns are purchased by large employers of labor, who, indeed, already are operating most of them. But the moral advantage of private ownership is wanting, and it is not fortunate as a general thing to have the employer also be the landlord.

Social Environment

The ideal solution, retaining unity of the town without paternalism or loss of the sense of ownership, is to sell these towns intact to the residents, to be held in trust for them and by them as a communal property.

Erect a local incorporated association of the tenants in which each shall have a vote. Levy an amortization charge in the rents to retire the principal as rapidly as possible. Vest the property in a tenants' association under a deed of trust which keeps the property a unit, prohibits sale of houses and prohibits private profit. All revenues will then be redistributed among the tenants in the form of services.

By this plan Uncle Sam, having assembled the land economically through his power of condemnation, having populated it with a success which would make a real estate dealer green with envy, now says to the tenants:

"I don't propose to let the real estate speculators get in here to run up rents and reduce service. You who live in these houses can have the property as a joint possession for what it has cost me, special war cost excepted. I want no profit, simply my principal with interest. I solemnly want assurance that the inhabitants shall get the benefit of the unusual situation and that the property shall not become a subject for private real estate manipulation and exploitation of the tenants."

How practical this plan may be can only be determined after wages and building values find their level and the shown. The big sacred concert for Sunday will be the usual high class offering.

The sacred concert will be made up of the following high class vaudeville acts: Chief Tondoroff, Indian vocalist, an attraction extraordinary; Danley & Merrill, comedy singing and dancing; Dorothy Kenton, musician; O'Brien & Buckley, singers and dancers; Laura Mae Lampert, the 10 reels of superior photoplays will include Harry Morey in a Bachelor's Children and "The Enchanted Profile." Could any one desire a more entertaining offering for a Sunday afternoon or evening. Remember the performances are continuous from 2.30 to 10.15 p. m.

"The Man of Bronze" is the title of a statue in the picture of the first three which will be shown for the first three days of the week beginning with Monday on Monday. When the hero sees the statue it has a remarkable effect on his career. It is under high dramatic and unusual circumstances that the girl sees the statue. The whole picture, for that matter, is dramatic and highly unusual. It is a western picture, but is different from the usual run of westerns, because of the fact that everything that happens on the screen occurs in the way that it would happen in every day life. Lewis S. Stone is the star of this picture. Mr. Stone is a highly successful actor, and his performance in this picture is one that fits him perfectly. The character, of course, is given a humaneness and strength that the star alone can impart. All of the other members of the supporting cast are highly trained.

"Secret Strings," the other attraction for the first part of the week, is a picture of a man who has married a supporting cast of note. The story relates the dramatic events that follow when a girl of unusual beauty and charm finds the man she has married a smooth and unprincipled crook who intends to use her attractions to further his own ends. She leaves him but later comes into his life and is the means of preventing a picaresque robbery, which he had planned. Love comes into her life again, this time, however, with a man worthy of her love and the romance ends in happiness. The play is one calculated to excite and maintain interest from the very beginning.

It is necessary, however, that nothing be done now that will prejudice the prospective opportunity of trying out in America a social experiment of such far-reaching and fascinating possibilities.

comedy and one of those interesting Weeklies, containing the latest views on current events of the past week, will also be shown.

Special mention is made of the coming of the Bostonia Ladies' orchestra, directed under the personal supervision of Bella Yearon Renfrew. The orchestra has 12 pieces in all, and judging from its past reputation, should serve to provide a genuine treat to all lovers of good music.

A tremendous smash at the walls of hypocrisy which surrounded the lives of many of us is given by Theda Bara, the famous screen star in her latest super-production, "When a Woman Sings," which will be shown at The Strand for the last three days of the week, beginning with matinee on Thursday. Playing the role of Poppea, a notorious wanton, Miss Bara delineates with great power and yet with touching appeal the human, lovable side of a woman whose life threads the devious paths of pleasure. The woman, though many men lay their heads on her feet, continues to love a young divinity student. His spiritual training, however, will not allow him to countenance her, until at last, in despair, she is about to end her life. Then he sends his forgiveness in a bunch of lilies. This is the latest Theda Bara super-production, and must not be missed.

An American girl victorious in a battle of brains and brawn with the Kaiser's secret agents, is the substance of the latest Peggy Hyland picture, called "Marriages Are Made." Here is a picture with the delightful, smashing epitome of all that Uncle Sam is doing to the despicable breed of Huns that infest the land of liberty. It's a genuinely good story and reflects in a marked way how Miss America outwitted a gang of destroying Huns. You can't afford to miss it.

A slutt and Jeff Christia comedy and a brand new Weekly will be other contributions. The highest and best, always is our motto. Follow it.

CARYLLE BLACKWELL AT JEWEL

THEATRE SUNDAY—GOOD

PROGRAM FOR WEEK

Carylle Blackwell, star actor, prince of popularity and writer of poetry, will headline the sacred Sunday concert program at the Jewel theatre tomorrow afternoon and evening in a stirring drama of modern life, "The Shadow of Doubt." The production is in five reels and has as its main theme the story of a woman who makes a bad man good.

If you came into your house after you had informed your wife you were going on a trip out of town for a few days, and found one man dickering with your safe, had him arrested, only to return and find another man in your bed chamber, with your wife in the house all the time, would any doubts of your wife's faithfulness enter your mind? These are only a few of the many problems which are intelligently worked out in the Equitable five-reel feature.

One of the programs will be "Transients in Arcadia," one of O. Henry's most appealing stories; a George Ade fable, "The Fable of the Speedy Swift," "Marooned," a side-splitting comedy, current events and others.

Monday and Tuesday will bring big, virile, red-blooded William Farnum to the Jewel in his latest five-part production, "A Soldier's Oath." The story is a most timely one, having to do with the part played by Pershing's men in the World War. This is a story of the best picture of Farnum's career and to miss it would be to miss part of the history of the present era.

One of the most popular of the popular "kids" will also be at the Jewel the first of the week in "We Should Worry," a nonchalant story of human of convalescence in the hospitals in France and England?

Let me tell you exactly what happened on a recent afternoon at the Tottenham Base hospital, near London. The boys came into the hospital theatre wearing their bandages. I had never seen so many bandaged men together before. There were bandaged legs and bandaged arms and bandaged shoulders and bandaged heads and bandaged eyes. Evidently these men were tired of bandages and wanted a little fun. They got it!

Some of the Red Cross people had gone through the best variety theatres of London and brought together upon the single stage the pick of all the talent of the town for the benefit of our American soldiers. There was a really wonderful tenor, several comedians, a pretty young American girl who played the violin and danced divinely to her own music.

There were several singers of humorous or catchy songs; there was a good contortionist as I have ever seen, and a conjurer who pulled eggs after eggs from a single egg, just to show the men how to increase their rations without additional expense.

Some of these performers are receiving five hundred dollars a week here in London. They gave their services freely to the Red Cross to please our boys.

And how the boys enjoyed it! They grinned, then laughed, then yelled then whistled ear-piercing sound through their teeth.

I saw one youth whose leg had been newly amputated moving the stump up and down with rapid-fire jerks. He had so far forgotten his troubles and wounds that he was trying to stamp his applause on the floor with a leg which was not there!

This is the fourth of a series of intimate stories of our Yankee veterans written for The Sun by Captain Herbert S. Johnson, pastor of the Warren Avenue Baptist church, Boston on Field Service with American Red Cross in Europe.

She was rich, and—
He was poor.
Nothing between them

covered with snow—
How in the world will we get them together?

EXCELLENT PROGRAM SUNDAY AND A POWERFUL SERMON MONDAY AT THE CROWN THEATRE

Sunday, Anita Stewart, the most talked about actress in New England, will be seen in "Clover's Rebellion," a five-reel play which has proved her finest vehicle since she has entered filmdom. She played the title part of "Clover Dean" in the comedy-romance of intrigue and mystery.

There is an old saying that "love laughs at locksmiths." Never did the little winged rogue of a matchmaker laugh louder than did the delicate little Clover blossom wither, so though her scheming aunt and uncle, who were willing to sell Clover to the highest bidder, and the locksmiths were all on their side.

TO PUSH AND EXTEND ROAD DEVELOPMENT

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 30.—Co-operative highway construction under the federal aid road act must be resumed as quickly as possible in full measure, the secretary of agriculture, J. F. Houston, stated at a conference of editors of agricultural journals held recently in Washington.

From unexpected balances of federal appropriations for the last few years, from state funds beyond what was necessary to meet the federal allocations, and from amounts available during the current fiscal year, approximately $75,000,000 will be available for expenditure during the calendar year. Next year, if all the balances should be expended during this year, and we should have to rely solely on the funds accruing next year, there will be about $200,000,000 from federal appropriations, and probably more than this amount from state sources, according to the secretary's statement.

The states, in addition, will expend sums in excess of what they have assigned, or will assign, for federal aid road projects.

"It seems to me," said the secretary, "that we should take a further step—take this step not only because of the importance of good roads, but also because of the desirability of furnishing worthy projects on which unemployed labor during the period of readjustment may be engaged. There will be many things suggested for which federal and state funds will be sought. Some of these will be unworthy. Clearly such public works as roads are worthy, and it would be in the public interest to make available larger appropriations from the federal treasury to be used separately or in conjunction with state and local apportionment."

"There need be no delay in the execution of such a program. The nation has already provided the machinery in the department of agriculture and in the state highway commissions. The federal aid road act was fruitful of good legislation, and each state in the nation now has a central highway authority with power and funds to meet the terms of the federal act. The two agencies, in conjunction, have been engaged in devising well-considered road systems and in making surveys, plans, and specifications. The task will be one of selection, and those roads should be designated for improvement which are of the greatest economic importance, with due regard to such military and other needs as are proper for consideration. There is no necessity for any departure from this scheme. The suggestions made have been canvassed with the president, the secretary of war, and the postmaster general, and they are in accord with the view that additional funds should be made available to this department and that they should be expended through existing machinery."

VALUABLE TIPS ON COAL SAVING

The local fuel committee has received a shipment of several thousand leaders dealing with coal saving in the home, which contain several valuable tips to householders who this year are being asked to use a greater amount of conservation than ever before. If you want to know just how to get the greatest efficiency from your heating plant in relation to the funds invested in fuel this is sure to prove an invaluable help. The committee will be glad to furnish everyone with one of these leaders, or will mail it to any householder sending in their address. The best way, however, is to drop in at 117 Merrimack street today or tomorrow and give this little book the "once over."

The following is an extract from the leader, which is only one of the many

AMERICANS RESCUED FROM HUN DUGOUT

WITH THE AMERICAN FORCES IN FRANCE. — (Correspondence of The Associated Press) — Wounded and taken prisoners by the Germans and for two days kept in a dugout on the side of a hill which was under shell fire alternately by the Americans and then by the enemy two American privates were rescued by their comrades after 45 hours of fighting.

The privates were captured in the region of Chateau Thierry along the eastern edge of the Argonne forest. Just before Chateau Thierry was captured by the Americans. While the Germans were endeavoring to decide what to do with the wounded men the American artillery opened up and the Germans determined in a hurry to remove them to a nearby dugout, and four big Germans crowded in beside them.

For two days the artillery, first of the Americans and then of the Germans, swept the hill and so intense was the shelling that even the Germans did not attempt to escape.

On the third day the American infantry began going forward and when the crest of the hill was reached there was a rush of the Americans to the place where their two comrades had been wounded in an encounter while making a reconnaissance in the early morning. Leading the men was Captain Howell Foreman, of Atlanta, Ga., who had little hope of finding the two men alive.

One of the Americans heard a sound from within the dugout and one of the detachment, in German, ordered those on the inside to surrender, threatening to shower the dugout entrance with hand grenades at once. The reply that came back was in perfectly good American—and four husky Germans stepped from the cave with their hands above their heads. A moment afterward the wounded Americans had come into their own again. Despite German machine gunners firing from the edge of the forest and from commanding heights to the northwest the Americans were carried back over the hill from which they had come more than two days before, the four German prisoners marching beside them.

FIVE FILTHY FINGERS

State Board of Health Warns Bay Staters to Keep Each Digit Clean

Now that the influenza epidemic has subsided, leaving behind as its lesson, however, or one of its lessons, that personal cleanliness is one of the things that serves to keep a person immune from epidemic diseases, a recent warning contained in the state board of health bulletin can be studied probably with some profit.

This little sermon on cleanliness is entitled "Five Dirty Fingers," which sounds somewhat kiddish, but is nevertheless a warning directed to grown-ups as well as little people.

The bulletin says:

"Did you ever make a diary of your fingers? Did you ever set down in cold black and white the things your fingers touch every day, and did you ever consider the number of times daily that your unwashed fingers seek your mouth?"

"When surgeons discovered that it was their own infected fingers which carried germs into wounds they set about trying to discover a means whereby their hands could be rendered perfectly clean, i.e., free from germs. The whole realm of chemistry was ransacked for agents which would disinfect hands, and the scrubbing and immersion to which they subjected their hands are even yet a tender memory to the surgeons of that period. But all of these efforts proved useless and at last in despair surgeons took to wearing rubber gloves which could be boiled, thus bringing to each patient, as it were, a fresh pair of sterile hands. In other words, try as you will you cannot by any known method make your hands absolutely clean."

"The great agent in the spread of these diseases whose cumulative organism is present in the secretions of the mouth and nose is the human hand; and if saliva were bright green we would be amazed at the color of our fingers. As a matter of fact, most of us carry our fingers to our mouth or nose many times daily, there to implant the germs of disease, which other careless people have spread about; there to collect a fresh cargo of infectious material to scatter for somebody else."

"It is true that most cases of disease die quickly once they leave the human body, but what does the death of a few billion germs matter so long as the supply is copious and never-ending?"

"When an enormous number of insects, or germs, as they are called, are on a hand, the hand and fingers are the most dangerous of all."

"The answer is to keep your fingers out of your mouth and nose. Thus we keep the spread of disease from these organs at least; thus we eliminate the danger of contracting disease from some one else who was not quite so careful."

BUILDING PERMITS FOR THE WEEK

NOT MUCH DOING IN THE BUILDING LINE HERE

According to present plans work on the new building to be erected by the Merrimack River Savings bank at the corner of Central and Williams streets will start in the early spring. The building, which is to be a new home for the bank, will be to be by 80 feet, three stories high. The street front will be occupied by the bank, which will have spacious and well appointed quarters. The upper floors will not be divided into offices, but each floor will be let entire. It is expected that work on the new structure will be started in the early part of May.

Building Permits
There were but five building permits issued from the office of the inspector of buildings at city hall this week and the estimated costs were small.
The permits issued were for the construction of a garage at 15 Huntington street at a cost of $200; to Robert S. Curran for the construction of a lunch room at 1374 Middlesex street at a cost of $150; to M. Branchant for the erection of a small building for storage purposes at 100 Martin street at a cost of $300; to Peter Lamy for the building of a storage shed at 166 Ludlum street at a cost of $50; to Wallace E. Hater for the tearing down of a barn and building at 815 Lawrence street at a cost of about $20.

REAL ESTATE DEALERS

Thos. H. Elliott—Real estate broker—Office, 61 Central street, cor. Prescott, reports the following sales negotiated during the past week:
On behalf of the Smithsonian Institute of Washington, D. C., conveyance has been made of the lot of land numbered 95 Crawford street. This lot is a portion of a legacy left to the Institute by the late George W. Peck. It has an area approximating 3600 square feet and is transferred to Samuel C. Farnham and Elise C. Cinq-mars, who buy for investment purposes.
The sale of a most attractive village farm situated on the southern side of High street and on the outskirts of the village of Chelmsford Centre. The house is in cottage style with even rooms. There is also an excellent stable on the premises. The land in all is the highest grade and totals three acres. The transfer is effected on behalf of Mrs. Laura E. Edwards, the purchaser being Miss Elizabeth Wentworth of Lexington. Miss Wentworth buys for personal occupancy.

Also the sale of a double house at 22-24 Columbus avenue. The house has eight rooms and bath with each apartment, the heat being by furnaces. The outbuildings are separate and the roof squared. PASS YOUR PLATE FOR SOME MORE SQUASH

Miss Bernice J. Everett, city leader for the local women's food conservation committee, associated with the United States agricultural department, has received an interesting statement from William L. McChesney, a man in close touch with the marketmen of the state, in which he explains the present over-abundance of squash in this state and why the housekeepers of Lowell and other cities in Massachusetts should take every opportunity possible to make use of this vegetable.

Appended to the statement are a number of squash recipes by Miss Everett. The people of the commonwealth have always responded nobly to appeals for assistance in relieving serious situations and conditions, after the facts had been clearly brought to their attention, and plans for relief outlined. A recent survey by marketing agents and members of the food administration brought out the fact that the squash situation, at this time, is really serious because the markets are glutted, due to the fact that hundreds of tons of squash, for want of storage facilities, must be moved immediately to prevent almost total loss through freezing. Again, additional hundreds of tons must be moved, because, strange as it may seem, a large quantity of the best quality squash ever produced in the state is not keeping well and if it is to be saved, it must go into consumption immediately. Three farmers in eastern Massachusetts have 600 tons of squash to say nothing of the hundreds of smaller producers who have quantities varying from a ton to ten tons.

When asked the reason for this tremendous supply of squash, the growers replied that it was their answer to the appeal for more food. They needed to raise the crops which would produce the larger amount of food with the least expenditure of labor. They increased acreage. The favorable season gave yield and quality—large pieces averaging over 12 tons to the acre of the finest quality squash.

The farmers' price which in 1916 was $65 a ton, in 1917 $45 a ton, is today from $30-$35 a ton. In other words, the farmer is receiving from one cent to one and one-half cents a pound and many retailers are selling as low as two to three cents a pound.
Surely this is cheap food and should be one of the most attractive bargains for the homewife during Thanksgiving week. To buy squash is not only good economy, it is also sound patriotism in that, every added effort on the part of the consumer, helps to relieve the tension on the producer, who is thereby heartened and encouraged for he realizes that even though he barely gets the cost of production, at least the product is a real contribution to the useable food supply of the nation.
Use squash liberally—regularly—buying a whole squash at a time to reduce waste and extra cost of handling. This is one way to help the general conservation movement and thus carry through to the end the splendid program started last year.

Squash Recipes

Following are some recipes for the use of squash:

SQUASH PIE
1 1/2 cups steamed and strained squash
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon spice if desired
1 egg
1/2 cup milk
Mix sugar, salt, spice. Add squash, egg, slightly beaten, and milk gradually. Bake in one crust in a quick oven at first to set rim of crust. Then decrease heat in order not to curdle the custard mixture.

BAKED WINTER SQUASH
Cut in pieces two inches square, remove seeds and stringy portion, place in a dripping-pan, sprinkle with salt and pepper, and allow for each square one-half teaspoon molasses and one-half teaspoon melted butter. Bake

Now is the time to do Christmas shopping. The season is on and the lid is off. Council of National Defense has removed all wartime restrictions on Christmas buying.

You needn't cut down your gift list for patriotic reasons. You needn't limit yourself to buying a few "good wishes" cards. For the highest of patriotic reasons you can buy until your heart is content. The more you buy the better will business be. The better business becomes the easier the employment question will be solved. Lively business means greater public confidence.

Let all go to this Christmas buying stunt as the boys went at the big job in France—with enthusiasm. The more we help boom business the more we'll help ourselves. Even our philanthropy will be an interest-bearing investment.
